

Michael A. Margolis, R.Ph.
Managing Director
Healthcare Investment Banking
ROTH Capital Partners, LLC

Michael Margolis is a Managing Director in ROTH Capital Partners' Healthcare investment banking group and joined the firm in December 2009. Margolis was most recently a Managing Director of Healthcare investment banking at Merriman Curhan Ford. Previously Margolis was a senior vice president at Rodman & Renshaw. He had extensive financial and pharmaceutical industry experience before joining Rodman. Margolis worked at Novartis Pharmaceuticals Corporation in several roles, including as a director in the global business development and licensing group. He was an equity research analyst at Ursus Capital, and he began his career at Eli Lilly & Company as a senior pharmaceutical representative. Margolis throughout his career has executed a significant number of banking and strategic transactions across all healthcare sectors.

Margolis is a registered pharmacist with an M.B.A. from New York University's Stern School of Business and a pharmacy degree from Rutgers University, College of Pharmacy. He is based in our New York office.